ROBESON, THE EMBEZZLER. MORALLY AS WELLAS TECHNICALLY GUILTY OF THEFT.

Withholding Sailors' Honest Pay to Bolster Up Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co.—How that Firm Started without Capital and Made $400.000 a Year—Mr. Glover's Speech. WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.-The following is at portion of Mr. Glover's speech yesterday on

SUSPICIOUS COINCIDENCES OF DATE.

This view is strengthened by the fact that uring September and October Bladford paid to drafts. But the day after the money left cutter's hands—the very day Bradford received to—petitions in bankrupter were filed against lay Cooke & Co., which stopped their attempts odo business, and made this programme useless. Had Bradford been called on to pay drafts in September and October, this would have mounted to relieving the London house of the necessity for doing so, which would have been a their obligations, this would have been in effect a loan to them, and this action might have been deemed an excusable good nature toward an embarrassed house. But when he went further, and lent them over a million in addition to this relief, his conduct is without excuse. A motive for all this favor may perhaps be found in the fact that Robeson's intimate friends and creditors, A. G. and E. G. Cattell, were Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co.'s bondsmen, and, had the house failed, must have lost $100,000.

icors, A. G. and E. G. Cattell, were Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co.'s bondsmen.and, had the house failed, must have lost $100,000.

PREVIOUS FAYORS TO THE FIRM.

But this October transaction, which, unlike the attempts in September, was pushed to successful completion, was by no means the first favor Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co. had received in co. nection with the naval account. It is stated, by a journal no less able and responsible than the Codeago Times, that this account was offered in 1829 to the existing houses, on condition that Orvil Grant should share the profits of its use. Whether this is true or not, certain it is that Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Uo. had no capital. Their first deposit was a militon by Jay Cooke & Co. In about two years and a half they made $1,000,000 of profits, or $400,000 a year, and Jay Cooke & Co. withdrow their deposited militon, these profits being substituted and treated as caritel. How these great profits were obtained in a market where five per cent. is a high interest appears from the following facts: The money was usually transmitted to Jay Cooke & Co. at New York, who would profit by its use, and would buy bills of exchange in favor of Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co. These bills being due at thirty, sixty, or ninety days after presentation to the drawess at London, we, e not credited to the United States till they matured; but, meantime, Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co. These bills being due at thirty, sixty, or ninety days after presentation to the drawess at London, we, e not credited to the United States till they matured; but, meantime, Jay Cooke, McCuiloch & Co. These bills being due at the proceeds of bills of exchange, and the blance of public money in their hands sometimes exceeded $1.600,000 at a time-sixteen times the amount for which they were under bonds. It is true that they allowed the Government four per cent, in the rock of public money in their hands sometimes exceeded $1.600,000 at a time-sixteen times the amount for which they were under bonds. This does not seem to have been enough to pull the house through, for, Nov. Ik, he accommodated them with $20,000 more. Notworn by features of this transaction are that security was professed by taken, that most of the money was not used for naval purposes, and that it was red id, not by distursement on navy account, but like any other loan by refunds of the cash and sales of securities. The statement that the firm's going into liquidation has prevented earlier repayment shows plainly that the moles was used for business and not for naval purposes. Had it been held in readiness to meet of fits, it could have been at once turned over the parafford, the Barings, or the Seligmans when liquidation dear.

THE ROCKAWAY YACHTSMEN.

Brilliant Race Under Double Reefs-The Boats that Won the Prizes. The Rockaway Yacht Club had its fifth annual regatta yesterday. There was a stiff breeze from the eastward that covered the inlet with white caps and compelled all to turn in double reefs and stow jibs. The course was let from off the club house to a stake boat two miles to the eastward, thence to a stake boat a return to starting point. The time allowance was one minute to the foot, and was given at the start, each boat being swung off on the port tack from the club house wharf. The yacht

From the Journal of Commerce.

An event has just occurred in England, attracting little notice and creating no surprise there, which, if it happened in this country, would be nailed as the dawn of a political milieunium. Lord Henry Lennox has resigned the office of Commissioner of Puelle Works for no stronger reason than because Lord Chief Justice Colerioge indirectly censured (not by name) his connection as director with a speculative and ruinous scheme—the Lisbon Tramway Company, one of "Baron" Grant's bantlings. No Parliamentary committee had been appointed to investigate his relations to that slieged fraud, and none was talked of. Mr. Disraeli had not requested him to resign. Had his conduct been made the subject of inquiry, it is likely that no common carelessness among directors, could have been proved against him. He had become connected with the company five years ago, long before his accept..nec of high office from the Government, at a time when many men of influential character and rank were lenoing their names too freely to speculations. It was the bad inshion of that day for directors of companies to accept free .illotments of stock. Lord H. Lennox took one hundred of these "qualification shares," but, on the other hand, he bought and paid for three hundred. He withdrew from the concern as soon as he found out its real purpose. The chief point made against his was this fact before him. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, in summing up the case of "Twycross vs. Grant," incidentally said that the conduct of the directors "required explanation." The admonition was slight and only implied; but to a man sensitive and self-respecting it sufficed. Lord H. Lennox not only exclained the case to the country from his seat in the House, but he promptly resigned his honorable and important office it the Courty from his seat in the House, but he promptly resigned his honorable and important
